CHISOLM MEMORIAL SERVICES.

BISHOP HAVEN'S COMMENTS ON THE SOUTHERN ASSASSINATIONS OF REPUBLICANS.

Services in commemoration of Judge Chisolm and children, who were murdered in Kemper County, Mississippi, on the 29th of April, were held last Sunday at the Metropolitan M. E. Church, in Washington. The Rev. Dr. Naylor, pastor of the church, made some introductory remarks, in the course of which he said that the interment of these persons at the time of their death was surrounded by such circumstances as to prevent public religious services. Their remains are now about to be removed to their final resting place at Lockhaven, Penn., and as Judge Chisolm was in the habit of attending the Metropolitan Church when in Washington, and the remainder of his family continues to worship there, it was proper that services of this kind should now be held. Mrs. Chisolm who is a clerk in one of the Departments, was present.

Dr. Naylor also said that the ladies of his congregation and others are raising funds for the erection of a monument to the memory of Judge Chisolm.

Bishop Gilbert Haven, of the M. E. Church, delivered the memorial address. After referring to the circumstances of Judge Chisolm's death, he said:

"We shall not enter on a field that lies before your every thought. Why was this deed done, and what shall be the end, if these things are allowed to go unrebuked of the Nation? Ye need not that I should teach you. The angel of Death, not God-sent but devil-driven, hovers over much of our land, smiting with blood strokes the victims of his cruel wrath. He has left your homes free, yet only for a season. If we allow murder for opinion's sake to be the law of one part of our land, it will soon be of all parts. Can one member suffer and not all suffer with it? Can a leading citizen and his family be set on and slain in Massachusetts for political causes, and peace and safety attend the ballot in Mississippi? No more can the reverse be true. The present honey-combing of Pennsylvania with murder which stern and unrelenting justice cannot abate, the communistic threatenings in Chicago and California, the bloody strikes along the Ohio, the tramps wandering murderously over one-half of our Union, are the natural, the inevitable outcome of the unwillingness of the National Government to protect its citizens in the other half. The theory that State Governments have such absolute control of life and death within their territories that the nation cannot cross the boundaries to protect its citizens and punish their murderers has brought us to this weak and miserable pass. We are frightened at the shadow glowerings at our own hearthstones. In secluded Vermont, in crowded Cincinnati, in remote Maine, in Central Indiana, the same terror besets us by night, the same deadly danger by day. One Indian massacre arouses every part of the land, be it the Modocs of Oregon, or the Sioux of Minnesota, or the Utes of Colorado or the Comanches of Arizona.

Indignation and wrath leap from end to end of the continent, and this too when no one dreams that the dread foe is to steal again into Eastern homes and renew his horrors at Wyoming or Schenectady. But this deed has universal national application. It proves universal national disaster. A people that cannot protect itself is no people. [Applause.] It falls to pieces. The Old World is over-governed—we under-governed. Nothing strikes one more forcibly than the lack of our National power over our own citizens. Unless a stronger Government arises, we shall dissolve and disappear as a nation. We sigh for the verification of the seal of Massachusetts, an uplifted arm holding a sword, which alone gives peace and quiet under liberty. We have taken the first step in verifying our right to exist as a nation on gigantic fields of strife by bloody and costly war. We must carry forward and complete this work in the national protection of every citizen in his every right. [Applause.] We must defend freedom of speech and freedom of ballot or we perish from the earth. [Prolonged applause.]

To this coming perfection of National peace and power, this sad event will contribute. This family group are martyrs to American equality of right to the Declaration of Independence and the preamble of the Constitution. It was for the cause of equal rights that the father fought and the family fell. It was for the protection of every citizen at the polls, for true democracy, the government of the majority of the voters legally and fearlessly expressed, for the American nation, for the rights of mankind, that this citizen of America with his brave son and braver daughter laid down his life. [Applause.] God forbid that the horror of universal bitterness of spirit shall light upon our land. Yet if the deluge shall come, if the waters of death shall prevail even above the tops of the loftiest mountains, if the Nation shall be wrapped in the flames of civil strife more dire than any we have yet seen, and our indifference to the fate of our brothers shall doom us to a worse suffering, out of it all shall the new earth come. The deluge shall pass away. The land of righteousness, of brotherhood of Christ without caste, or violence, or hatred or disloyalty or murder shall appear above the flood.

Several sudden deaths have occurred in Hallowell within the past week, carrying sorrow to the hearts of many families and friends. On Saturday morning last Mrs. Eliza E., wife of Mr. Geo. F. McIntosh, was suddenly stricken down by death; and on Monday morning, Mrs. Adaline, wife of Asa Libbey passed away after a brief illness of three days. On the previous Friday two of her children were taken away by diphtheria, and consigned to the tomb; and on the same day she was attacked by the dread disease, which terminated fatally as above stated, on Monday morning. These and other sad events of recent occurrence in that community, are solemn reminders of the uncertainty of all earthly enjoyments, and the mutability of all earthly ties.

John Sheehan, who leaves a family in Portland, was killed Monday, at Montreal, where he was at work upon the steamers of the Dominion line. The body was brought to Portland for burial. Mr. Sheehan was a member of the Irish American Relief Association. He left Portland early in the spring to work on the steamers.

Mr. H. Smith has completed his directory of Portland Odd Fellows. He finds that there are 5,398 members of the Order in that city

THE MAN WITH THE BRANDED HAND.

[From the Detroit Post.]

The recent announcement of the death of Captain Jonathan Walker, at Black Lake, in this State, recalls vividly one of the most startling incidents of the anti-slavery agitation of thirty and thirty-five years ago,—for Captain Walker was the "Man with the Branded Hand," celebrated by Whittier in one of his stirring poems against slavery. He was born near Harwich, Cape Cod, March 22, 1809, and at an early age became a seaman. In 1835, he went to Mexico to assist Benjamin Lundy, one of the earliest anti-slavery workers, in colonizing fugitives from slavery. The scheme failed, as all colonization schemes for slaves have failed, and Walker returned to his avocation as a sea captain. In 1844 he was solicited by several fugitive slaves at Pensacola, Fla., to carry them in his vessel to the British West Indies. Although well aware of the hazard of the enterprise, he attempted to comply with their request. He was seized by an American vessel and taken to Florida, where he was loaded with irons and kept in solitary confinement for one year. When he was finally brought to trial, he was convicted of assisting slaves to obtain their freedom, and sentenced to the pillory, to be branded with the letters "S. S." (slave-stealer) with a hot iron on the right hand, and to pay a fine of $600 and costs. It will seem almost incredible to our younger readers of to-day that such a sentence should be imposed and executed in the "Land of the Free" during the present generation, but it is true. After his liberation he became a very effective anti-slavery lecturer from 1845 to 1849. In 1863 he came to Michigan and settled at Black Lake, Muskegon county. He has lately been in reduced circumstances, infirm and old, and the Post and Tribune published some months ago an appeal in his behalf by ex-Lieutenant Governor Holt, of Muskegon, which was generously responded to. The anti-slavery pioneer and veteran has now passed away, and the brand which the slave-dealers meant for his lasting shame has proven his greatest honor.

Mr. Whittier's poem on this event had the ring of genuine inspiration, and will do more than anything else to make the name of its hero immortal:

Why, that hand is highest honor than its traces never yet
Upon old armorial hatchments was a prouder blazon set;
And thy unborn generations, as they tread our rocky strand,
Shall tell with pride the story of their father's Branded Hand!

As the Templar home was welcome, bearing back from Syrian wars
The scars of Arab lances and of Paynim scimetars,
The pallor of the prison, and the shackle's crimson span,
So we meet thee, so we greet thee, truest friend of God and man.

He suffered for the ransom of the dear Redeemer's grave—
Thou for his living presence in the bound and bleeding slave;
He for a soil no longer by the feet of angels trod—
Thou for the true Shechinah, the present home of God!

For while the jurist, sitting with the slave whip o'er him swung,
From the tortured truths of Freedom the lie of Slavery wrung,
And the solemn priest to Moloch, on each God deserted shrine,
Broke the bondman's heart for bread, poured the bondman's blood for wine—

While the multitude in blindness to a far-off Saviour knelt,
And spurned the while the temple where a present Saviour dwelt,
Thou beheld'st him in the task field, in the prison-shadows dim,
And the mercy to the bondman, it was mercy unto Him!

* * * * * * *

Then lift that manly right hand bold ploughman of the wave!
Its branded palm shall prophesy "Salvation to the slave!"
Hold up its fire-wrought language, that whoso reads may feel
His heart swell strong within him, his sinews changed to steel.

Hold it up before our sunshine, up against our Northern air!
Ho! men of Massachusetts, for the love of God look there!
Take it henceforth for your standard, like the Bruce's heart of yore,
In the dark strife closing round ye, let that hand be seen before!

And the tyrants of the Slaveland shall tremble at that sign,
When it points its finger Southward along the Puritan line:
Woe to the State gorged leeches and the Church's locust band,
When they look from slavery's ramparts on the coming of that hand!

GO BACK TO THE LAND.

[From the Boston Advertiser.]

Wishing to know what had become of a certain prosperous New York banker, whose sweeping failure in business was reported some months ago, inquiry was made of a connexion of his by marriage:

"Where is A—— now?"

"In New Hampshire, at work on my farm," was the answer.

The news was not surprising. It was just like the man—a worthy, sensible fellow as ever lived, one of the kind who never whine over loss and disappointment. How many of the thousands of rich men in the country, who have "failed" as badly as he, will as contentedly go back to the foundation estate, and rest on the first human birthright? So much energy has gone into the excitements of trade, and the great competing industries of the manufacturing towns, that the land has been neglected. Our farmers are of the last generation. Their sons are merchants, speculators, inventors—producers of the more sensational and speedy sort.

The demand for luxuries has increased with the supply, and the art of producing the necessities suffers for lack of the old hearty following. Men have grown ashamed to plod. It is easier to handle some one else's money than to handle one's own plough; and a great many forget that it is a good deal more dangerous. The scent of a swift fortune and an easy income has become sweeter to the patent-making Yankee than "the smell of a field that the Lord has blessed." It was inevitable that this greedy materialism and eager insisting on showy results should affect the morality of business and all social health and wealth. Prosperity, not satisfied with the safe march afoot, went by express train, by wind, by telegraph; and got so far from its legitimate base as fatally to expose its weakness.

Remedial advice in the present distress need not always be "Go West"—though there the almost exhaustless untilled territory offers gracious opportunities. Let those who have been making fortunes to lose them scatter themselves from the cities into the country and make food. And enough mill laborers, shut out of silenced factories, may go with them to help them. There is room in the "agricultural districts" for more of them. Retreat there affords a situation secure from panics, and nearly the only one. Fallow farms enough lie waiting. Go back to the land. No surer mending of the mind as well as the fortune can be prescribed for the frustrated speculator and capitalist. Many, such are thrown out and standing aside, and there will be more. The few great and strong business houses are absorbing the small and weak. Men accustomed to wealth, finding themselves unprovided for, must provide for themselves. To no small number, disappointed and brooding seeds of insanity and suicide in their enforced illness, a little farm will be the best possible refuge and occupation. If they have forgotten all their boyhood knowledge of the plow and the hoe, it will pay to learn again.

Let us not be misunderstood. We must have the toil of cities as well as the tilth of fields. But the former has outgrown the the latter in enormous disproportion. Let us have a new division and a new departure. There is no other country in which the credit system in business prevails to so extravagant extent as in ours. We are suffering the consequences of floating factories and commercial firms on paper, and tempting dishonesty by over-trust. Once aground let us greet the ground, and get a blessing out of it. It may be the saving of you to earn your own living for one generation by digging. Overhaul Poor Richard's ploughman's almanac, study its maxims, accumulate slowly, and get in the habit of paying as you go. Randolph Tucker may be a rank free trade heretic when he says, "This nation ought to be contented with cultivating the soil and raising cereals for export in exchange for all other things which we need;" but it goes without saying that a nation of farmers, rather than shop-keepers, beat the world for honest money and wholesome prosperity,—a prosperity that knows its own foundation, and can count its own cash value at the close of every day. A little sum will buy a good farm now, and a little health will be bettered by working it. Our American people need to smell the soil more. The name, "Jew" would never have suggested the Shylock type if the golden age of the Hebrew race—the agricultural age—had lasted. The giant Antaeus could hold his own with Hercules only when he touched the earth. If hard times shall teach this nation to recognize again the real mother of its strength and greatness, there will be no need to repeat the lesson, and the prophetic song will be answered,

"Hard times come again no more."

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

Nelson Ham, Esq., brought to the Lewiston Journal office Monday morning a stock of winter rye, four feet and an inch high, the highest he has ever seen the 20th of May. The stalk is headed already.

There was quick work on the new Little Androscoggin M. C. R. R. bridge on Sunday. Everything was in readiness for the demolition of the old structure after the last train of Saturday passed, and a large crew put the iron bridge in place ready for the passage of trains on Monday.

About 11 o'clock Sunday night John Bartlett, of Lewiston, was passing along the sidewalk on Broad street bridge, when he was without provocation attacked by a young man about 17 years of age, who turns out to be a certain Michael McCarty of Auburn. McCarty was full of whisky, and had previously wantonly attacked several persons. Bartlett drew a revolver after the second blow, aimed it at McCarty and discharged it. The ball took effect in McCarty's cheek. Bartlett, who is a respectable man, working at Barker's Mill, proceeded to his home and spent the night. On Monday forenoon he came to the police station and delivered himself up. A warrant for his arrest had previously been made out. The City Marshal states from all the information at hand, that the shooting was in self-defense. Bartlett, a year ago, was attacked by three ruffians, in about the same place, two of whom held him, while a third robbed him. He then says he determined he would defend himself next time. Accordingly he says he bought a small revolver, and the first occasion he has had to use it was on Sunday evening. McCarty was brought to the police station and surgical aid secured. The ball was extracted from behind the ear. The wounded man will recover.

Cumberland.

Judge George F. Shepley Hon. Bion Bradbury and Rev. F. E. Clark, all of Portland, have been chosen a committee on prize essays by the present junior class of Dartmouth College.

The Army and Navy Union, of Portland, have voted to decorate the graves of their deceased comrades on Sunday next without parade, but there will be a prayer, a brief address, quartette singing, and little girls will deposit the floral offerings at Evergreen Cemetery in the afternoon.

In the challange cup-race of the Portland Yacht Club, second and third classes, Monday, the Undine retained the schooner-cup, second-class. The Twilight took the sloop-cup, second-class. The Mist keeps the sloop-cup, third-class.

Mellen Green, who has been keeping a barber shop in Portland, for the past year was found shot through the neck in a piece of woods near Yarmouth Junction, Monday morning. On the 28th of April while running his shop in Portland, Dr. Holt was called to see him at the Central House on Centre street. He had become despondent and had taken one hundred and twenty grains of morphine. The dose was so large that he vomited it up and recovered. He went home to his family in Yarmouth on the 1st inst., and on the 7th returned to Portland to see a friend. He said he was discouraged and wanted to get something better to do. The friend obtained a school for him and he agreed to take it the following day. On the 8th inst. he telegraphed saying that he could not take the school. The same day he borrowed a gun in Yarmouth and said he was going shooting. His family supposed he was in Portland and only Monday discovered he was not. A search was instituted and resulted in the finding of his body as stated above. Coroner Gould was sent for and held an inquest. A verdict was rendered that he had come to his death by his own hand. Mr. Green was one term in the medical school at Brunswick and for some time was a teacher until he went into the barber business. He was thirty three years of age and leaves a wife and four children in Yarmouth.

William Purvis, Esq., of Portland, a member of the Cumberland Bar died at Gray, Monday, after a short illness. He went to Gray a few weeks since for a short recreation and not long after arriving there was taken with bleeding at the lungs. Since then he has been gradually failing.

A little child, aged four years, was playing Saturday afternoon, near a large bucket of hot tar that was intended for use on the roof of a building in Deering, and fell in by some accident. It was feared the child was so badly burned it could not survive.

Kennebec.

There is a man going around Augusta cheating the people by selling them thorny bushes for rose bushes.

Maj. S. J. Gallagher has been selected by Seth Williams Post, of Augusta, as Chief Marshall on Decoration day.

The Journal says that the Scribner boy, the third child so brutally beaten by his father, at Augusta, is still living, but has become considerably emaciated. If he recovers, it will be almost a miracle.

Mr. J. D. Cheeseman the ice we can of the Kennebec, has made a trade and assumed control of the houses and ice of the Pittston Ice Co., located just above the bridge. He will ship it as soon as vessels can be procured. Up to this time about 200,000 tons of ice has been shipped from the Kennebec, with a fair, but not exorbitant price, with a good prospect of clearing out all the houses along the river before next fall.

Oxford.

W. D. Bartlett, who occupies in company with J. F. Young a front upstairs room on Main street, at West Paris, was awakened, as he thinks, by the presence of some one in the room, and from the dim light which came in through a half closed blind he discovered a man dressed in gray clothes and slouched hat, with full beard and weighing about 175 pounds, standing near the door of a closet which he uses for depositing jewelry and other valuables. On making an effort to awake Mr. Young, who seems to have no fear of tramps, and who has good reason to sleep soundly as he has been broken of his rest a good deal lately, Mr. Tramp took the hint and quietly walked out. After waking his sleepy companion, who ventured to hold the door to keep the man from returning, Mr. Bartlett got up and going to the window made an effort to raise the neighbors in hopes to arrest the burglar; but as no one responded the unwelcome visitor was allowed to depart in peace.

James and Gilman Anderson of Parsonsfield lost their buildings by fire, Saturday, May 11, caused by a defective oven. All was consumed excepting a small amount of furniture in the lower story. They were insured for about $1500. This is the fourth set of buildings that have been burned within three months, in that vicinity.

THE PEOPLE SHOULD RELIZE THE SITUATION.

[From the N. Y. Times.]

The same optimism which led the business classes to believe, with Mr. Seward, that the rebellion would run its course in ninety days, impelled and still impels them to underestimate the disturbing elements that are at work to produce financial and industrial disorganization. This feeling it is that prompts them to pooh-pooh the revolutionary scheme which the Democratic party has by sheer brute force thrust upon the House of Representatives. They cannot believe that it has any serious meaning. Their faith in the common sense of their countrymen, and in the latent energy of the Republic, is to profound that they regard the affair simply as an attempt to make partisan capital for use in the Fall campaign. Therefore they trouble themselves very little upon the subject. "It is an ordinary party game," they say, "and we can afford to allow the politicians engaged to play it out in their own way."

If these classes, disgusted as they are with partisan strife and anxious above all things for the return of business activity and success, could be convinced that the tendency of the scheme, which the House has sanctioned is to raise anew the issue which the Electoral Commission, with the concurrence of Congress, settled, they would admit the gravity of the situation. They would at once understand that the contest involves a revolution,—an overthrow of one government, existing in conformity with law, and an inauguration of another government without the semblance of law, and with no other warrant than that derived from a reckless exercise of partisan power. An ordinary Presidential canvass is sufficiently prejudicial to business. It creates doubts and uncertainties, suggests the necessity of unusual confidence, and in various ways checks the prosperity of trade. Such an event, in the present condition of trade, would by prudent persons be considered a misfortune. Let us assure that instead of an average excitement of this sort the country were suddenly brought face to face with a struggle between the authority of law and the authority begotten of a powerful partisan organization, with the possession of the Executive branch of the Government as the object of contention, and the alarming nature of the contingency would be too plain to be denied! Every business man would see at a glance the effect upon his own interests. He would know that the slow march toward better times would be suddenly stopped and that returning confidence would give place to aggravated distrust. Of the social and political bearings of the event we need not speak. Conservatism is enlightened selfishness, and in the form in which it is commonly manifested here it is more likely to heed influences that imperil the material welfare of the community than those which tell unfavorably upon the machinery of government and the future of parties. It is because a revolutionary attack upon the Government, with the view of ejecting one President and forcibly seating another, would be attended with wide-spread industrial and business anarchy that the classes in question might be expected to exert themselves to prevent the occurrence of the crisis if they only understood that it should be reckoned among the possibilities of the next few months.

This, however, is the very contingency to which the Democratic "investigation" instituted under false pretenses through agencies in themselves fraudulent, clearly points. At the outset the agitation was contemptible enough, but it was at least honest, so far as the desire to drive Mr. Hayes out of the Presidency was concerned. The alleged frauds in Louisiana and Florida were not then assigned as reasons for inquiry merely or as the basis of damaging imputations upon public men other than the President. They were adduced as an argument for invalidating his title to his office. The Blair resolution, adopted by the Mary and Legislature, and the proceedings in the House consequent upon it, did not admit of a second meaning. Its progress was slow because the Democratic members had not been disciplined up to the requisite standard, and few outside observers were willing to look at it as a matter that could occasion serious trouble. But the promoters of this investigation are the malcontents who never professed recognition of Mr. Hayes' title, who persistently maintained that his occupancy of the Presidency is a fraud, and who have steadily insisted that steps should be taken to dispossess him. Can we doubt that their adoption of the formalities of investigation is a device to serve a double purpose—to find fresh pretexts for impugning the title, and to so commit their party that, having found what it may call proofs of fraud, it must proceed against the President as in the enjoyment of the product of fraud? From this point of view they are dexterously playing a well-planned game. Indirectly they have pledged the Democratic party to the discovery of frauds; and, this achieved, they will have little difficulty in imposing upon the party the subsequent task of proceeding against the persons alleged to be involved. That the frauds which the one-sided investigation will nominally reveal will be so stated as to compromise the President, is as certain as that Speaker Randall has packed the committee in the interest of the assailants of Mr. Hayes' title. Nor is there the slightest excuse for believing that members of the party who meanwhile declare themselves inimical to this ulterior action, will not be disciplined into submission before the revolutionary stage of the proceeding is reached.

The practical question is, whether all the activity, all the planning and working, shall be on the side of those who are intent upon revolutionizing the Government. To look on passively now, to be indifferent while the issues of the Fall campaign are formulated, to postpone action until the second phase of the struggle is before the country, will be to throw away the best chance of defeating the agitators and averting the disasters which must attend their success. Attempts to counteract the mischief by appealing to the majority of the present House would be idle. The plotters have gone too far to be diverted from their purpose. The only hope lies in narrowing down to a single issue the questions raised by their proceedings of last week, and in fastening upon them and their party the responsibility for the revolution at which they aim. We may not expect the business classes to enter into the contest with the ardor of partisans. But it is not unreasonable to assume that they will neither allow themselves to be lulled into confidence nor fail to exert the influence they wield in behalf of the peace and order which are jeopardized by the measures sanctioned by the House.

THE HALIFAX AWARD.

[From the N. Y. Tribune.]

The able paper in which Secretary Evarts reviews the history of the Halifax Fisheries Award sustains, in its statement of facts, all that has been alleged of the injustice of that verdict, and approves, in its suggestions, the recommendations made by Mr. Blaine. In a word, Mr. Evarts says, as we have already said—Pay, but not without a protest. With reference to the necessity for unanimity in the award, the Secretary is content to reproduce the utterances of Mr. Blake, Canadian Minister of Justice, and of the London Times, both long since printed in the Tribune, which most distinctly asserted the necessity of such unanimity. With reference to the equity of the award, the paper presents a compact array of unanswerable facts. "The practical measure of the concession to the United States under Article 18 of the Treaty of Washington, was the participation by our citizens in the in-shore fisheries of the Gulf of St. Lawrence"—a mackerel fishery within the three-mile limit. From the value of this privilege it was at least necessary to deduct the value of the privilege, given in return, of free importation into our ports of the products of the Canadian fisheries, in order to get at the proper figure for an award; though Commissioner Kellogg, indeed, thought the privilege conferred upon the Canadians was more valuable than that received by us. Now the right granted to us was once estimated to be worth in perpetuity less than a million dollars, and the right granted to the Canadians they considered so valuable that they would not hear of parting with it. But when the Commissioners came to ascertain the difference between these two values, for a twelve years' use only of the right, they find it to be $5,500,000! Fortunately, however, as Mr. Blaine showed, there are actual statistics to prove that this award is what Mr. Evarts calls it —"an extravagant and inexplicable measure of value." These establish the fact that the whole catch of fish under this privilege during the last five years has been worth less than the sum we are called upon to pay each year for the use of it. Probably there will be no dispute anywhere over the payment of the money. There should be none: but the protest of our Government should be made, nevertheless.

WATCH THEM!

[From the N. Y. Tribune.]

The Solid South has cut itself off from all claim to magnanimous treatment for a long time to come. By its own confession Hayes has done more to pacify and rebuild it than Tilden could have done had he been President; and yet at the first opportunity it turns about and attempts to supplant Hayes by Tilden, at the risk of throwing the whole country into revolution. Aside from the reckless dishonesty of this conduct, it is the blackest specimen of ingratitude this generation has seen.

It will be well now to watch closely the conduct of Congress on the Southern claims question. If the acquiescence of the South in the Potter scheme has been obtained by promise to grant these claims at the next Congress, signs of such an agreement will soon appear. One of them will be a continuation of the practice of postponing all action on the subject till the next Congress. A contrary sign, and the only one possible, will be the unanimous action of the party against the payment of all claims either now or hereafter. It will be entirely safe to bet heavily that no amount of watching will detect the latter sign.

DEMOCRATIC HARD MONEY DOCTRINE.

There are two Democrats in Illinois, ex-Gov. John M. Palmer and Thomas Hoyne, who oppose the soft-money doctrine of the Illinois Democratic platform. The following letter from Mr. Hoyne to Mr. Palmer is worth the attention of those Democratic leaders in Maine who are coquetting with the Greenbackers:

I have been greatly pleased to learn that you refuse to indorse, even by your silence, the "new departure" of the late Democratic Convention, which for the first time in our history affirms a power in Congress to make paper credit of the Government a legal-tender in payment of public and private debts. After a lifetime of service in the Democratic ranks, I had supposed that if there was one more cardinal point in our Democratic creed than another, it was that Congress, under the Constitution, could exercise no power not expressly granted by that instrument. But this power, which has been made so often a subject of political controversy, so often disclaimed by us, and, on account of its importance, so often settled by so many triumphs of our statesmen, against the claim that such a power exists in the Government; I had supposed it so ancient a landmark of identity that no Democrat could mistake or fail of its recognition, except under the penalty of falling himself outside the well-defined pale of the Democratic brotherhood. During every Administration of the Democratic party in the past, since the foundation of the Government, the policy and wisdom of this doctrine have been vindicated. The Administration of Andrew Jackson is especially illustrious in American history, because of the war of extermination he waged upon the United States Bank. The eloquence of his official utterances are prophetic warnings against the danger of transferring to any Government agency the exercise of such a power over the fortunes of the people as that of contracting or expanding at pleasure the currency or money standard of the country, by which the rise and fall of the prices of silver and all commodities are regulated. It would be in effect as the statesmen of that day declared, placing under the control of such an agency the personal fortunes of every individual citizen. For if such an agency can at any moment raise the prices of all articles and then depress them what is it in effect but to place the values of all property as well as labor, under the control of a Government stock board of brokers? in which chance, caprice, or money greed would control the markets and fortunes would be made or lost as the individuals governing the stock-board clique might determine; and in some cases, the same as illustrated during the existence of the United States Bank in 1837, the whole country would suffer universal bankruptcy of the commercial and manufacturing classes.

On our first page we publish an extract from the eloquent address of Bishop Haven at the Gilsolm memorial services in Washington. Bishop Haven is one of the few champions of liberty and loyalty whose tongues have not been palsied by cowardice or subserviency.

Nothing can exceed the reckless lying of the Greenback leaders. Some time since one of them in the West made the statement that President Grant in his annual message in 1873 said that by the withdrawal of the three per cent certificates, compound interest notes and 7-30 bonds outstanding on the 4th of March, 1869, all of which took the place of legal tenders in the bank reserves, the currency had been contracted $630,000,000! What General Grant did say was, that by these withdrawals the volume of legal tenders had been reduced $63,000,000. Still the organs go on printing the inflated lie in full face type. Call it the Munchausen Party.—Boston Journal.

In making this paragraph the Journal would have stated that the forgery appeared in the Indianapolis Sun and was exposed by the Bangor WHIG AND COURIER, had not such a statement of facts necessitated recognizing the service of the "stalwart" paper from whose columns it obtained the material for the above. If the Journal continues to progress in its awakening it will soon be copying our "stalwart Republican" editorials without credit.

An interesting debate occured in the Senate on Monday, on the House bill proposing to place General Shields on the retired list of the Army, which was called up by Senator Cockrell. The Tribune's special says: An amendment of Senator Sargent, to add General Grant's name to the retired list, with the rank of General, took the Democrats completely by surprise, and at first seemed, also, to cause the Republicans to waver. Mr. Oglesby made a very loud speech against the bill, and Senator Blaine followed in a short, ringing speech in favor of including General Grant's name in the bill; and during the debate he spoke in the most earnest manner in behalf of the ex-General. He seemed to solidify the Republican vote, and the amendment was carried by one majority—Yeas, 29; nays, 28. Only one Republican (Mr. Oglesby) voted against the amendment. One Democrat (Mr. Lamar) voted in favor of it. The debate had two significant features. First, the Democrats quickly massed their vote against General Grant and secondly, Senator Blaine took the lead in the debate in General Grant's favor, warmly, cordially and effectively.

The Washington correspondent of the New Orleans Times telegraphed that paper recently: "It looks ugly here. The Democrats mean to bounce Hayes." He also remarked that Mr. Randall's friends are already talking about him becoming President, Hayes and Wheeler having been previously turned out.

THE FERRON MURDER.

NEW YORK, May 22. The schooner Mary B. Harris, on board of which Barney Ferron was killed, arrived here yesterday. Ernest Tabbott, of Indian River, who was a shipmate of young Wright, the latter charged with killing Ferron, was taken before Police Judge Ferry, of Brooklyn, and held in $50 as a witness in the case. Tabbott's statement is mainly corroborative of Wright's so far as Tabbott knows. The latter was absent on the day of the murder and freely states he was and who he was with. Captain Crowley states that Wright was given to petty thieving, but never showed a murderous or ugly disposition. The trial will not take place till October.

A verdict was rendered for $4,905, the full amount and interest.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

FORTY-FIFTH CONGRESS—Second Session.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 22.

Mr. Davis of West Virginia, called up the resolution authorizing the select committee appointed to investigate finance reports, books and accounts of the Treasury Department to continue investigation and sit during recess of the Senate, discussion ensued pending which the morning hour expired.

The bill to provide a permanent form of Government for the District of Columbia was taken up but laid aside informally, and Mr. Lamar spoke at length in favor of the Texas Pacific bill.

Mr. Lamar in conclusion appealed to the Senators from the New England States especially to support the measure as a work of national importance in the interest of the whole American people.

Mr. Johnson gave notice that he desired to address the Senate upon this bill, but was not prepared to-day.

Mr. Allison from the Conference Committee on the Indian appropriation bill, submitted a report which was agreed to and the bill passed.

The Senate then resumed consideration of the bill providing a permanent form of government for the District of Columbia and the first section recognizing the district as a municipal corporation, etc., was agreed to without amendment.

Mr. Bayard moved to amend the second section providing for the appointment of Commissioners so as to provide that the two Commissioners to be appointed from civil life shall be actual residents of the district for one year instead of three as the Senate Committee proposed.

Mr. Ingalls in charge of the bill said that the bill as it passed the House fixed the period at five years, but the Senate Committee reduced it to three years. It had been rumored, he did not know with what truth, this provision was put in by the House for the express purpose of meeting a particular case. If that was true it would not be wise for the Senate to agree to it.

Pending discussion Mr. Voorhees introduced a bill authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Wabash.

The Senate went into executive session, and when the doors were reopened adjourned.

House.

Mr. Leebe offered a resolution calling for information as to the Presidential pardons of criminals since March, 1877. Adopted.

Mr. Butler introduced a bill for the appointment of two Associate Justices for the District of Columbia. Referred.

The Senate bill for the relief of settlers on public lands whose crops were injured by grasshoppers, was passed.

Mr. Harrison offered as a question of privilege resolutions extending the Potter investigation to Oregon and South Carolina and declaring it not the intention of the House through such investigation to annul, or attempt to annul, the decision of the Presidential question as made in the 44th Congress.

The vote on Harrison's resolution resulted, yeas 71, nays 50, and the point of order, "no quorum" being raised on the Democratic side, Harrison withdrew them.

Mr. Wilson offered a resolution extending the power of the investigating committee where there may be well grounded allegations of fraud.

Mr. Cox of New York, moved to refer the resolution to the Potter Committee and the yeas and nays were ordered.

The motion to refer Wilson's resolution being defeated, yeas 89, nays 115, the resolution was adopted without division.

Mr. Springer submitted a report of the expenditures of the State Department, setting forth ten articles of impeachment against O. B. Bradford, late Consul General at Shanghai, China. Referred to the Judiciary Committee. They are:

First. That he became interested in, and promoted officially a railway from Woosung to Shanghai in violation of treaty obligations and the acts of Congress.

Second. That he conspired for a pecuniary gain with E. Iverson and others to deceive the Chinese authorities by procuring consent to build a carriage road, and afterwards constructing a Railroad from Woosung to Shanghai.

Third. That he was guilty of injustice tyranny and extortion in his official capacity as a Judge of the consular court upon citizens of the United States. [There are five specifications under this article.]

Fourth and fifth—That as Postal Agent of the United States, he abstracted letters from the mails and opened them for the purpose of prying into the business and secrets of the persons writing the letters.

Sixth—That he took a voucher in one instance for $80 and paid in person only $60, retaining $20.

Seventh—That as the Postal Agent at Shanghai he received Mexican dollars, which were at a premium over gold and currency; that he paid his expenses in like coin, but charged the Government a premium as if he had purchased such coin, thereby defrauding the Government out of large sums of money.

Eighth—That he embezzled fees due the Government of about $2,000.

Ninth—That he embezzled $[illegible],300 of Government funds.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole, Mr. Springer in the chair, on the Army Appropriation bill—all general debate to close in an hour.

While endeavoring to have the latter order made Mr. Hewitt of New York in answer to a question stated that he was in favor of adjourning sine die June 10.

Mr. Schleicher opposed the bill because he did not think it provided sufficient force for the protection of the Texas frontier, it has been said the Mexicans had promised to keep the peace on the border, but every one who had any experience with the neighbors of the United States on the Rio Grande knew their promises went for nothing. He read from testimony taken by the Committee on Foreign Affairs describing the murder of four Americans on American soil by Mexicans and said (very earnestly) that there had been a time when the murder of four American citizens would not have been ignored by the American Congress. He cited other similar outrages some of them quite recent and said the frontier residents of Texas were being murdered, robbed, impoverished and ignored without even the poor boon of pity from their countrymen who were making laws for the whole country. In conclusion he pleaded for the exposed people of that frontier against the jeers of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Bragg) and fratricidal economy of the gentleman from New York (Hewitt.)

Mr. Banning stated that under the new organization every infantry company must have 73 men, while at present there was not an infantry company which mustered 30 men. The bill increased the force of infantry and cavalry companies, and left artillery alone, and under its provisions there will be more muskets on the Texas frontier than there are at present. The gentleman from Ohio (Garfield) had been alarmed by a letter of an English Lord. If the Revolutionary fathers had been alarmed in that way there never would have been a government here.

This closed the general debate on the Army Appropriation bill and the Committee proceeded to consider it under the five minute rule.

Mr. Throckmorton moved to amend by making the limitation of the army 25,000 instead of 20,000 men.

After a long debate the Committee without action rose and the House took a recess.

Evening Session.

Mr. Southard, chairman of the committee on counting the Electoral vote, reported a bill on that subject. Ordered printed and recommitted, to be called up June 4th.

The House proceeded to the consideration of the bill introduced by Butler for the publication of an official Advertiser of the United States which shall contain all public advertisements, etc.

WASHINGTON.

Secretary Sherman and The Potter Investigation.

WASHINGTON, May 22. Secretary Sherman to-day expressed satisfaction that the subject of his connection with the Louisiana election had got beyond the newspapers. Specific charges have been made and what he wanted was an open hearing and no favors and this Mr. Sherman asserted with considerable warmth, he intended to have. Mr. Sherman said the statements in the newspapers on the subject of the charges were false and libelous.

Secret Sessions Contemplated.

A Washington special says that unless the press speak out plainly, there is danger that the Potter Committee will hold secret sessions. Morrison, Blackburn and Hunter favor open sessions. Barnum has advised Potter to have secret sessions and Ben Butler and Potter favor them.

NORTH CAROLINA.

A Great Convulsion.

ASHEVILLE, May 20. Two years ago, residents of this section of the famous Bald Mountain were thrown into great consternation by continual rumblings and inexplicable noises heard in the bowels of the immense mountain. The phenomena attracted the attention of scientific men in all parts of the country. The rumbling lasted for about two weeks and then ceased. They had the effect of rendering the real estate in the neighborhood, that had been valuable, almost worthless, and the inhabitants hastened to move from the neighborhood of the mysterious mountain. Last Friday night the noises began again; the mountain shook as in the throes of an earthquake; immense trees and rocks were hurled down the mountain side and sounds like intermittent thunder were heard during the night. This morning those who ventured near saw that the mountain had been literally split in twain, leaving a chasm of 300 feet in length and from 8 to 19 feet in width. So far as has been ascertained, the chasm is a bottomless abyss. As yet no smoke or lava has been thrown from the crater, but early in the morning here was a strong smell of sulphur about he place.

FOREIGN NEWS.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The Great Strike.

LONDON, May 22. There are no further disturbances in the strike districts of Lancashire and there is not likely to be any more rioting in consequence of the precautions taken by the military and police. Hopes of an early settlement of the differences are not abandoned. Spinners and card-room hands oppose a ballot on the questions at issue, but the weavers at Blackburn and some other towns will vote to-morrow. At Preston the operatives favor submitting as there are many thousands of weavers at Blackburn who believe the result of their voting will have important effect on other strikers. Meantime the strike is extending. Notices of 10 per cent. reduction expired at Todmorden and Ramsbottom last night, and the operatives have resolved to resist a reduction.

The Times on Fenianism.

The Times' editorial on Sir John Holker's reply to Mr. Gourley in the House of Commons last evening, expresses the utmost confidence that England has nothing to fear from "Alabamas" or Fenians, and that the United States will do their duty. The assurances of popular American journals to the effect may be accepted the more frankly because they are not always accompanied by complimentary language toward England and are very generally qualified by expressions of good will toward Russia.

Schouvaloff and His Propositions

THE GOVERNMENT OF BULGARIA.

A Warning.

Austria Becoming Anti-Russian.

Though Austria refuses to permit Montenegro to acquire Antivari lest it become virtually a Russian port she does not object to the acquisition of Spizza, which will give the Montenegrins access to the sea. Austrian precautions in Transylvania are being hastened. The Vienna correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says the relations between Austria and Roumania have become close. He also says that Emperor William advised Prince Charles to yield Bessarabia and abdicate if the Roumanians raised difficulties, but the Prince refused and went to the army. German interference has given offence at Vienna. General Manteuffel has arrived in Vienna. It is reported that he is the bearer of an autograph letter from Emperor William to the Emperor Francis Joseph. It is stated that otherwise the feeling in Austrian ministerial circles is becoming distrustful of the issue and more and more anti-Russian.

Schouvaloff's Mission.

LONDON, May 23. Count Schouvaloff arrived too late to have an interview with Lord Salisbury. He will call upon him to-day, however.

A despatch to the Standard from St. Petersburg says Gortschakoff is better and hopes to attend the Congress, which is thought certain.

The Agence Russe declares there will be one positive intelligence regarding the result of Schouvaloff's mission before next week.

The daily Telegraph's Vienna correspondent says: "I hear on trustworthy authority that although Count Schouvaloff is bearer of the propositions he has not obtained all he desired. It is nevertheless believed he succeeded to a certain extent.

The Daily News' correspondent at St. Petersburg says the opinion prevails that Schouvaloff takes to London instructions containing the elements of a friendly and decisive solution of the question at issue. The secrecy maintained by him will continue until the Government receives his answer from London, which will not be telegraphed, but sent by courier. Accordingly nothing certain will be known before next week.

Various Reports.

LONDON, May 22. The Turks have defeated the Cretan Insurgents in several encounters. The British Consul at Caneo has proposed an armistice. Skobeloff, reinforced with artillery, has stationed his troops close to Sweet waters. CATTARO, May 22. A conflict between Montenegrins and the Porte is threatening. Prince Nicholas accuses the Turks of making preparations in Albania for attacking Montenegro.

The Government of Bulgaria.

A Vienna despatch to the Times reports that General Korsakoff, Governor General of Bulgaria, has issued a proclamation announcing his appointment by the Czar, and that he is about to carry out the automatic organization of the country and prepare for the election of a Prince. As yet, he says, it is necessary to employ Russians versed in administration, but when the organization is complete the Bulgarians will also be employed.

PERSONAL. We enjoyed a pleasant call last evening from Rev. Leander S. Coan, of Alton, N. H., a number of whose stirring poems have appeared in our columns. Mr. Coan will give a reading of selections at the Congregational church, Orono, this evening.

Geraniums, all things considered, are the best plants for the amateur. If care is taken in the selection you can have them in bloom every month in the year. For variety and beauty of color they are unsurpassed. The old rose geranium is a universal favorite. No bouquet is complete without some of its fragrant leaves.

Two weeks ago to-day a fellow named Charles Davidson succeeded in making his escape from the jail while the turnkey had him employed out in the yard. FISH. Fish Commissioner Stillwell informs us that during this season they have distributed one hundred and thirty thousand land-locked salmon, and forty thousand blue backed trout throughout the State. They will commence to distribute black bass about the first of July. They have also made some improvements at the fishway this season. As the water flowed into the upper gate with such force as to make it difficult for the fish to run through, extra partitions have been made which break the force of the water. The water was shut off a few days ago and a large salmon, five alewives and several lamprels were found in the fish-way. Mr. Stillwell says that they are very much encouraged by the interest which the people manifest in the fish throughout the State.

Yesterday, Frank Frost had a young and frisky hedgehog down at his store on Exchange street. He captured it in the woods while out on a fishing excursion and brought it home with him. RESIGNATION OF OFFICER CLIFFORD. We regret to learn that policeman John J. Clifford has tendered his resignation which has been accepted. Mr. Clifford has been connected with the Bangor police force nearly four years during which time he faithfully performed the duties of his office and has won a large circle of friends. He was one of our most efficient officers and although he was feared by all evil doers, yet he held the respect of all classes. He is about to start for the West and has our best wishes for future success. Mr. Patrick Dougherty, who was a member of the force for about two years, has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

RATHER DANGEROUS AMUSEMENT. The Press says: "Tuesday afternoon a young man named Robinson who tends in his father's store near the foot of Middle street in Portland, obtained a revolver and determined to try it. He obtained a target and putting it up against a door in the back end of the shop began his practice. It seems that in the rear of this store a Mrs. Finch had two rooms in which she lives. The first shot which the young man fired missed the target and went through the door passing very near Mrs. Finch's head. The woman was very much alarmed by the shot but hardly had time to give expression to her alarm when a second shot came through the door and passed through her hair. She then gave the alarm and the firing ceased. The two shots struck on the wall behind where Mrs. Finch stood and were completely flattened out. It was a very narrow escape for Mrs. Finch, and the boy should be taught a lesson not to use fire arms so carelessly again."

Resolved, That the thanks of this association are hereby tendered to our Brother James S. It was also voted, that the above resolutions be printed in the daily papers and an attested copy, under the hand of the Secretary of the Bar be transmitted to the donors.

Cure for Hydrophobia.

The people in the Western part of the State are considerably agitated about the dreaded disease known as hydrophobia; and we find the following extract in the Portland Press taken from an article recently published in the London Times:

The following account of the cure of a case of genuine hydrophobia by the administration of curara, or wourali (the Indian arrow poison) will no doubt interest our readers, as it shows that this disease may prove less fatal than has hitherto been believed. The use of curare has been recommended by both English and foreign physicians, but no published account has hitherto appeared of its successful administration. The following is extracted from a treatise by Dr. Offenberg, who treated the case at Munster, in Westphalia. On the 23d of July, 1874, a peasant girl, aged 24, was bitten on the foot by a rabid dog. Several dogs had been previously destroyed in the neighborhood, and a farmer had died of hydrophobia at the adjoining farm. The wound became gradually worse, and refused to heal, and she was therefore admitted on the 3d of October to the Franciscan Hospital. Favorable progress was made during the first week, but at 8 P. M. the 18th, the usual symptoms of hydrophobia suddenly appeared. Convulsive spasm of the throat and chest, contractions of the muscles, restlessness, mental terror, increased every minute, and were soon followed by antipathy to light and to water, the sight of which produced violent convulsions. Morphia and chloroform having been given without result, a subcutaneous injection of three centigrammes of curare was made at 10:45 P. M. into the arm, and during the next four and a half hours five more injections were made, the quantity varying from two to three centigrammes. After the second injection the spasms began to diminish, and to appear at longer intervals, and the terror and mental anxiety were succeeded by loquacious cheerfulness.

At 3:20 A. M., the first symptom of paralysis appeared, and on two occasions a spasm was followed by complete cessation of respiration, which was quickly restored by compression of the abdomen. The spasms continued to diminish while the paralysis of the muscles increased, and movement and speech became extremely difficult. But after 7:20 A. M., these symptoms became less intense, and the patient was able to quench her thirst without pain or ill results. The improvement continued during the day, headache and great weakness being the most marked symptoms. On the 18th some slight return of spasm induced the administration of three centigrammes of curare as a measure of precaution, and after this the recovery was rapid and uninterrupted. On the 24th the patient ate some bread and milk, and enjoyed good sleep; on the 27th the headache finally disappeared, and on the 3d of December, the wound having completely healed, she returned to her home.

When visited on the 19th, she merely complained of slight weakness and a dislike to very strong light. The above case seems to prove that curare must be employed in paralyzing quantities to insure a good result. It seems probable that after inoculation with the poison of rabies a certain organic substance is developed, which rapidly produces its dreadful effects on the nervous system, and as rapidly disappears, either by expulsion or by transformation, into innocuous substances. Curare arrests and paralizes for a time the action of the poison, and during this period the expulsion or transformation alluded to is effected. Its use cannot be too strongly recommended; there is nothing to lose and everything to be gained, and in the above case at any rate it proved completely successful."

FOR BREAKFAST.

White hominy boiled and eaten with syrup, or sugar and cream, is excellent for breakfast.

Cold chicken, turkey veal or lamb left over from the previous day, may be minced up fine, warmed in gravy, and served on toast. But care must be given to the mincing and seasoning.

Brown bread thoroughly heated with some nice browned codfish balls make a palatable breakfast. But the codfish balls must be carefully prepared and seasoned, and mixed up moist before frying, or nothing is more tasteless.

The following is an excellent recipe for "Pancakes:" Half a pint of milk, three eggs, tablespoonful of butter or lard, one cup of sugar, a little nutmeg, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar, mixed with the flour. Make a batter rather stiff. Have ready a kettle of boiling lard, and drop the batter from a table spoon into it. The batter must be just stiff enough and the lard just hot enough—otherwise they will "soak." Dip the spoon into lard occasionally and they will slip easily. With warm biscuit and coffee, and a bit of good cheese, they make a good breakfast.

FASHION GOSSIP.

The fine laces Valenciennes, Segovian lace, Russian lace, are much employed for trimmings.

Bags for evening wear are of delicate shades of silk embroidered in pearl beads and white floss.

Lisle thread gloves in all colors are to be worn this season. They have deep open work gauntlet tops.

The newest styles of silk scarfs have marabout edges, or the silk is frayed out on all edges, and the centres are embroidered in gay colors.

Cuffs and wide collars for morning dresses are of colored linen mixed with white linen; they are in light blue or light pink.

The dotted muslins this year have larger figures than last year, and are made up into dresses composed of three parts—the underdress, overdress and basque.

Louis XVI. vests, to be worn with opened dresses, are made like under-handkerchiefs, and fasten up in the back; they have ruffles of lace and sequin buttons, and the cuffs match them.

Mourning flower bonnets are covered with silk flowers, imitating the numberless specimens used in colors; the leaves are veined with jet; black buttercups and poppies have gilt centres.

The new Watteau dresses are shaped to the figure, and the skirts flare out into round trains which have many flounces set one above the other, thus giving a very dressy effect to this graceful style of dress.

Very elaborate needlework bands are much employed this season. Some dressy bonnets have fine needlework bands as capes. On expensive white suits the bands are mixed with lace.

The "Lady Stanley" carriage hat has a wide brim caught up at one side with a rich ornament; the brim droops on the other side, and is edged all around with rows of gilt braid.

A correspondent in a late number of the Household, says the love of the beautiful in nature is almost universal; implanted in the heart by God, and like all his best gifts to mankind, it can be enjoyed alike by both the poor and the rich. For the lack of the beautiful in the home surroundings many a country boy has left home, to make only a third or fourth rate clerk in a city store, whereas he under more favorable home influences would have made a first rate farmer.

If we would make our children satisfied with home, we must adorn and beautify it, so that it will be to them the dearest place on earth. There is perhaps no earthly lesson of more importance to be learned by parents than this. It is true all cannot have ornamental trees, shrubs, and rare flowers to beautify and adorn their homes; but it is not necessary to be wealthy in order to make an attractive home, for if we have not the means to purchase trees from the growers, we can select the more common kinds to be found in plenty in our native forests. What is more magnificent than a row of stately maples, or more attractive than the drooping elm, with here and there a mountain ash! No one who owns a place can afford to be without trees; remove all attempts at making improvements in this direction and its value is decreased in a very large proportion. Neither is there any reasonable excuse why all should not have shrubbery, when it can be had in almost any locality for the asking.

Mrs. Partington says of education: "For my part I can't deceive what on airth edication is coming to. When I was young, if a gal only understood the rules of distraction, provision, multiplying and replenishing, and the common denominator, and knew all about the rivers and their obituaries, the covenants and their dormitories, the provinces and the umpires, they had edication enough. But now they have to study bottomy, algebay, and have to demonstrate suppositions about the sycophants or circumstangents and diagnosis of parallelgrams, to say nothing of oxhides, asheads, cowsticks and abstruse triangles. [And here the old lady was so confused with the technical names that she was forced to stop.]

PROOF OF AFFECTION. They were disputing as to who had the richest father, and the smaller one finally flew that track and called out:

"Well, I've got the best big sister, anyhow!"

"I guess not," replied the other.

"Yes, I have."

"I guess not, I've got the bossest big sister in Detroit. She'll stay home any day to let me wear her shoes to the circus!"

"My sister will do more'n that!" put in the little one. "She'll take the string out of her corset for me to spin my top with, and if I lose it she'll stay home from a party and never give me a word of sass! Is your sister any bosser than that?"

This big boy had to take a back seat.—Detroit Free Press.

"Your husband is sick a good deal of late, isn't he?" remarked an Illinois woman to another, one day this week.

"Yes," answered the wife, "he's got tuk down mighty hard with them 'ere ager shakes again."

"I shud think it 'ud be sorter distressin' like ter have him 'round the house," remarked the other, sympathizingly, "specially when yer at house cleanin'."

"Wal, so it wud be," replied the wife, in self-consoling tones, "but when he's got inter one of his chills, and I want the rag carpet shuk, yer see, he's a powerful smart hand ter hitch onto it."

Then the other woman wended her way home, envying her neighbor the knack she had of utilizing her husband.

VEGETINE

IS RECOMMENDED BY ALL PHYSICIANS.

VALLEY STREAM, Queens Co, Long Island, N Y
MR. H. R. STEVENS—
Dear Sir,—I take the pleasure of writing you a small certificate concerning Vegetine prepared by you. I have been a sufferer with the Dyspepsia for over forty years, and have had the Chronic Diarrhea for over six months, and have tried most everything, was given up to die, and did not expect to live from day to day and no physician could touch my case. I saw your Vegetine recommended to cure Dyspepsia. I commenced using it, and I continued doing so, and I am now a well woman and restored to perfect health. All who are afflicted with this terrible disease, I would kindly recommend to try it for the benefit of their health, and it is excellent as a blood purifier
By Dr. T. E. FORBES, M. D., for Mrs. WM. H. FORBES.

VEGETINE.—When the blood becomes lifeless and stagnant, either from change of weather or of climate, want of exercise, irregular diet, or from any other cause, the Vegetine will renew the blood, carry off the putrid humors, cleanse the stomach, regulate the bowels, and impart a tone of vigor to the whole body.

VEGETINE

For CANCERS and CANCEROUS HUMORS.

The Doctor's Certificate.

READ IT.

ASHLEY, Washington Co, Ill, Jan. 14, 1878.
MR. H. R. STEVENS—
Dear Sir,—This is to certify that I had been suffering from a Rose Cancer on my right breast, which grew very rapidly, and all my friends had given me up to die, when I heard of your medicine, Vegetine, recommended for Cancer and Cancerous Humors. I commenced to take it, and soon found myself beginning to feel better; my health and spirits both felt the benign influence which it exerted, and in a few months from the time I commenced the use of the Vegetine, the Cancer came out almost bodily.
CARRIE DEFOREST.

I certify that I am personally acquainted with Mrs. DeForrest, and consider her one of our very best women. DR. S. H. FLOWERS.

ALL DISEASES OF THE BLOOD. If Vegetine will relieve pain, cleanse, purify and cure such diseases, restoring the patient to perfect health after trying different physicians, many remedies, suffering for years, is it not conclusive proof, if you are a sufferer, you can be cured? Why is this medicine performing such great cures? It works in the blood, in the circulating fluid. It can truly be called the Great Blood Purifier. The great source of disease originates in the blood; and no medicine that does not act directly upon it, to purify and renovate, has any just claim upon public attention.

VEGETINE.

I regard it as a Valuable FAMILY MEDICINE.

Jan 1, 1878.
MR. H. R. STEVENS—
Dear Sir,—I take pleasure in saying, that I have used the Vegetine in my family with good results and I have known of several cases of remarkable cure effected by it. I regard it as a valuable family medicine. Truly yours,
REV. WM. McDONALD.

The Rev. Wm McDonald is well known through the United States as a minister in the M. E. Church.

THOUSANDS SPEAK.—Vegetine is acknowledged and recommended by physicians and apothecaries to be the best purifier and cleanser of the blood yet discovered, and thousands speak in its praise who have been restored to health.

VEGETINE.

The M. D.'s have it.

MR. H. R. STEVENS—
Dear Sir,—I have sold Vegetine for a long time, and find it gives most excellent satisfaction.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The veteran Magazine, which long ago outgrew its original title of the New Monthly Magazine, has not in the least abated the popularity it won at the outset, but has added to it in many ways, and has kept fairly abreast of the times, thanks to the enterprise of the publishers and the tact and wisdom of its editors. For whatever is best and most readable in the literature of travel, discovery, and fiction, the average reader of to day looks to Harper's Magazine, just as expectantly as did the reader of a quarter of a century ago; there is the same admirable variety of contents and the same freshness and suggestiveness in its editorial departments now as then.—Boston Journal.

CATARRH!

IS IT CURABLE?

THOSE who have suffered from the various complicated forms of disease assumed by Catarrh, who have tried many physicians and remedies without relief or cure, await the answer to this question with considerable anxiety. And well they may, for no disease that can be mentioned is so universally prevalent and so destructive to health as Catarrh. Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs, serious and frequently fatal affections of the lungs follow, in many instances, a case of simple but neglected Catarrh. Other sympathetic affections, such as deafness, impaired eyesight, and loss of sense of smell, may be referred to as minor but nevertheless serious results of neglected Catarrh, [illegible]

IT CAN BE CURED.

That it can be cured, there is no doubt about it. The immediate relief afforded by SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH is but slight evidence of what may follow a persistent use of this remedy. The hard incrusted matter that has lodged in the nasal passages is removed with a few applications; the ulceration and inflammation subdued and healed; the entire membranous linings of the head are cleansed and purified. Constitutionally its action is that of a powerful purifying agent, destroying in its course through the system the acid poison, the destructive agent in catarrhal diseases.

A COMPLICATED CASE.

Gentlemen,—My case is briefly as follows: I have had Catarrh for ten years, each year with increasing severity. For nine years I had not breathed through one nostril. I had droppings in the throat, severe bad cough, [illegible]
